His aunt, a rich and eccentric woman, gives Rana a large sum of money to establish the Heer Ranjha. And she gives him as a dowry to a rich and beautiful girl Heer Ranjha. Raju brings Ranjha to his house, where he lives with his extremely eccentric aunt, and Ranjha learns that Heer is not just a rich girl with a dowry but a social activist, and that Heer and her father, a Communist Party activist, are being harassed by the local police. Raju and Heer try to get Ranjha back to his home, where he was banished by the family. But Ranjha does not want to return to his family home. Sheer, a wealthy girl, meets Raju, who lives with his extremely eccentric aunt. Sheer tells Raju that she has a dowry from her wealthy family and wants to marry him. But Raju does not agree to marry her as he loves Heer Ranjha and wants to marry her instead. Sheer and Raju, both of them friends, want to get Ranjha out of his house. But Ranjha does not want to leave Raju's house. He just wants to live in peace. At one point, Ranjha tries to kill his mother. After that, Raju and Sheer convince Ranjha to leave his mother and come to live with them. First time saw this movie on my mom's new TV when she watched. I am a fan of this movie. Not sure why.
